Global financial markets continued their upwards trajectory in a calm October, led by a further appreciation in the dominating FA(A)NG stocks as well as the semiconductor and energy sector in the US. Global rates remained largely unchanged; this was true in major economies like the US, Europe and Japan. Within currencies, the US Dollar surged against most currencies, while cryptocurrencies continued their upward trend. In the commodity space, oil traded up in energy commodities, while copper and aluminum pushed metals higher. Hogs, cattle and sugar appreciated as well.

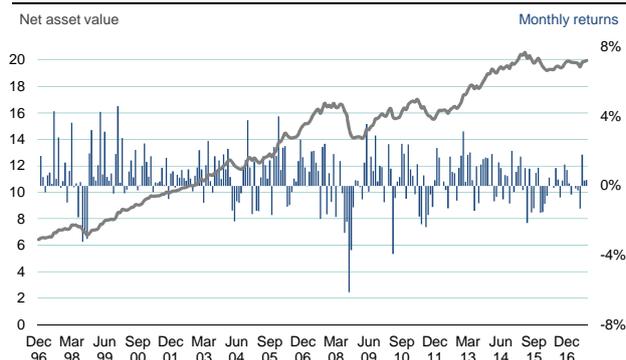

The portfolio posted a solid return with positive performance across almost all styles. The largest contribution stemmed from CTAs, with positive results from both trend-following and short-term strategies. Long exposure to equities and energy drove the positive performance. The second largest contribution came from Long/Short Equity managers, which all ended the month in positive territory, with the exception of one manager. Regional contributions were all positive, with Asia exposure contributing the most. Event Driven and Relative Value allocations also added to performance. Global Macro was the only style which detracted from performance, with divergent results across managers. In particular, commodities and FX focused strategies were unprofitable.

Style allocation as of 31 October 2017 (29 Holdings)

The allocations above take into account that a single underlying investment can have exposure to multiple styles and have been rebased to reflect underlying fund investments only.
